Notes for Charles W. Martin:

General Notes:

They lived at Germantown & Fall Creek ran across the Charles Martin Farm. Germantown is now under Geist Reservoir.

The following is from an article from The Indianapolis News. I don't have a date for the article but know it was before 1968.

Site of Germantown Under Geist Waters, by Wayne Guthrie.

"The ghost of a peaceful little pioneer village hovers over Geist Reservoir.

Submerged beneath the placid water of a manmade lake is the site of what once was Germantown.

To pinpoint the hamlet's location one must recall that for a short distance not far below the Marion-Hamilton County line the channel of Fall Creek runs east to west before heading south.

Germantown was on its north bank in that locality. It snuggled up to Hamilton County - in fact a few of its less than 10 houses were in that county.

It was the oldest town in Lawrence Township, Marion County, having been laid out March 1, 1834, by John Solomon and George Beaver.

Since the ranks of those who once knew Germantown intimately will continue to thin it is hoped that somebody will place a suitable marker to inform posterity of the site of that tiny town that once was "home" to many....."
